Huntly House. Here George, sixth Earl and first Marquis of Huntly—the same noble who was suspected of corresponding and conspiring with Spain—is said to have resided. Here, too, abode his son the second Marquis, who was forfeited in 1645 by the Covenanting Parliament for his steady adherence to the King, and after being deprived of his stately castles of Gecht and Strathbogie, lost his head on the block at the Market Cross in 1649.
